The Wood-carver at Fifty Cents

TEN years ago was published Mary E. Waller's noble story, "The Wood-carver of Lympus," which still sells by thousands and thousands each year at the original price of $1.50, when most novels not half so old are forgotten.

¶ "The Wood-carver" is destined now to reach an even greater public. Messrs. A. L. Burt Company publish this month a popular edition of 150,000 copies of this classic at the price of fifty cents. Thus an unusually stimulating and helpful book is put within the reach of all.

¶ Miss Waller's other novels, "Sanna of the Island Town," "A Year Out of Life," "Flamsted Quarries," and "A Cry in the Wilderness," continue to have a large and steady sale that perhaps surprises many who know how seldom works of fiction attain any permanence, but that is no surprise to those who have read this favorite author's books.

BIG LEAGUE SERIES

(Trade Mark Registered)

By Burt L. Standish

"Lefty" typifies the finest spirit of American manhood. From an humble beginning in a "bush" league town he rises by sheer pluck and ability until he becomes the "sensation" of the leading team in the big league. How this is accomplished against the plots and intrigues of jealous rivals is admirably depicted by the author, whose knowledge of the actions of baseball players on and off the field was acquired a number of years ago when he managed a "bush" league team. These splendid stories of baseball and romance are sure to appeal to all Americans, young and old, who have enjoyed the thrills and excitement of our national game.

DUTIES ON BOOKS IMPORTED IN EDITIONS.

THE report of George Haven Putnam to the American Publishers' Copyright League with documents, most of which have from time to time been published in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and his letter to President Wilson, leave little more to be said on a subject of very wide importance to American publishers and to the reading public, American and English, especially that part of the reading public which is concerned with serious literature and the results of scholarship. While "big sellers," usually of native origin, run their wild careers and books of English origin which it is worth while to copyright because of their assured sale are manufactured here under the manufacturing clause, as they very likely would be anyway, there remain and always will remain, large classes of books for which neither the English market alone nor the American market alone furnishes adequate support. The books which after generations may find the greatest books of their time, often belong to this class—Darwin's "Origin of Species," despite its later vogue, being probably a case in point. In more certain instance is the publication of Herbert Spencer's great series of philosophical works which was made possible only because his friend and supporter Prof. E. L. Youmans induced the Appleton house to join with the English publishers in making their issue possible.

Upon this class of books no unnecessary burden should be laid. It is usually a question whether at the best they can be made to pay; and if they are overweighted with costs, they simply cannot be published. As Mr. Putnam points out, sometimes American publishers arrange to divide costs with the English publishers, and sometimes they undertake to purchase a stated portion of the edition at a price based closely upon cost. To the price which American publishers pay for such books, they must of course add the duty based on that price. But now, after many contradictory decisions on the part of the Treasury Department, only exceeded by the shifting treatment of the income tax problem, comes a brand new ruling, which is practically in the nature of a perpetual injunction on a large portion of this business, and that the most important part. These are necessarily books which do not sell in large quantities, even to English wholesale dealers, for the whole point of their joint publication is that they must seek a diffused market. The sale of a dozen copies to a wholesale house in England may constitute the largest actual sale. The Treasury Department now rules that it will not regard the price which the American publisher actually pays, but will require him to pay duty on a price fixed by such sale in England as that indicated. This is so indefensible that it is difficult to see how the Treasury Department can have permitted itself to reach such a decision.

Cognate with this is the question of levying duty on authors' royalties. It is generally conceded that these are not tangible values which can be taxed, although in some cases the price paid for a partial edition practically includes the author's compensation which is not easily to be separated out of the price; but even in this case the theory should be that the book has a physical entity and that it and not the author's royalty is what should be taxed; and wherever possible the royalty should be deducted from the price paid. On this point the Treasury Department has shown more common sense, but the present practice may of course be upset at any moment, in view of the extraordinary tergiversations of the Department in this field.

Mr. Putnam has rightly felt that the subject is so broad a one as properly to invite the attention of the President—if the President amid the present perplexities of the ship of state can give any attention to the cargo. What is fairly to be expected, when President Wilson does reach this and like questions, is some general declaration of policy, in favor of broad rather than petty construction of law, in favor of freedom and against red tape, which will reassure business men, and not least those engaged in the business of publishing, that they are not to be treated as an obnoxious class upon whose shoulders every possible burden is to be loaded.

THE DUTY ON BOOKS IMPORTED IN EDITIONS—A LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT.

MR. GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM, as secretary of the American Publishers' Copyright League, recently sent to President Wilson the following letter, in which are reviewed the conflicting decisions of the Treasury Department in the last two years relative to books imported in editions, and the present status of the problem.

New York City, February 20, 1914.

Dear Mr. President:

All Americans who have literary interests were ready to extend cordial congratulations to the President, to Mr. Underwood, to the Administration, and to Congress for the important step that was taken in the shaping of the tariff measure of 1913 in freeing literature from unnecessary burdens. The reduction from twenty-five per cent. to fifteen per cent. in the duty on imported books, and the maintenance on the free list (after a change backward had been made in the Senate), of books originating in language other than English, gave expression to an intelligent and liberal policy on the part of the Administration in regard to the literary and educational interests of the country.

I find it in order, therefore, on behalf of the publishers and of others interested in securing good literature at the lowest cost to American readers and students, to bring to your attention a recent decision in the Treasury Department, the effect of which must, for a very important class of imported books, not only nullify the reduction secured in form in the existing tariff, but increase very much beyond the rate paid under the previous Republican administration the amount of duty to be paid and the final cost to the buyer of the books in question.

The houses which, like my own, have for a series of years had transatlantic interests, have been developing the business of making publication of books under joint arrangement with transatlantic publishers. The larger the number of markets between which can be divided the first or "plant" cost of a book, the amount paid for authorship and for illustrations (and as far as are concerned markets like Great Britain and the United States possessing the same language) the cost of the typesetting and the electrotyping, the smaller the actual cost of producing the book and the lower the price at which it can be sold, and is sold, to the final buyer.

The American reader or student is entitled to secure the best literature of the world in the form which best meets his special requirements and at the lowest possible cost to himself. The books of the class now referred to, for which such division of editions is advantageous, belong not to the lighter literature —such as novels—but to literature in the higher divisions—works of science, works of literary reference, works of art, etc. This is the class of books for which it is not as a rule necessary to secure the protection of American copyright. When the total demand in the American market does not exceed one thousand copies, there is a disadvantage, namely, a material increase in the cost of production and in the price to the consumer, in bringing the book into type in this market. If the book be not imported in an edition, which has, as above explained, been divided between two or more markets, it would not be printed in the United States, but the requirements of American buyers would be met by the importation of single copies, or in lots of one dozen, and the buyer would be called upon to pay a very much higher price than when the book can be imported in a supply of five hundred or of one thousand copies. There is, therefore, no prospect of increasing the work of American typesetters and printers through the interference with this business of importing in editions books of this special class.

It has heretofore been the routine, under the instructions given by the Treasury Department to the Customs authorities, to accept as the dutiable value for books imported in editions, the invoices of the importing publishers showing the amount actually paid for such supplies.

In July, 1912, the Treasury Department (of the preceding Administration) issued an order to the effect that these invoices should be accepted with the restriction that the dutiable value should be extended for bound books at not less than thirty per cent. of the English retail price; for books folded or in sheets at not less than fifteen per cent. of such price. We had always contended that the price at which a book was sold at retail in London had no pertinent or logical connection with the cost of production of an edition for this market, and ought, therefore, not to be considered in arriving at dutiable value. The figures fixed, however, by the decision of July, 1912, were very fairly in line with the prices actually paid in the majority of cases by the importing publishers for such editions.

In fact in a number of cases, the importing publishers were called upon to pay higher prices, and these invoices, with the higher prices, were, of course, in such cases utilized as the basis of duty. In June, 1913, the Treasury Department issued an instruction under which the minimum dutiable value for books imported in editions was increased for the books published on what is called the net list (which constitute nine-tenths of the importations), for bound books from thirty per cent. to forty per cent. of the retail price, and for books in sheets from fifteen per cent. to sixteen and two-thirds per cent. of such price. This decision increased about thirty-three and one-third per cent. the basis for duty of books imported in covers, and about ten per cent. the basis of duty for books imported unbound.

On the 30th of January, 1914, a decision was arrived at by the Treasury Department, which has been confirmed in an instruction given by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Appraiser of the Port of New York, bearing date February 17th, to the effect that the instructions of July, 1912, and of June, 1913, had been revoked. The Appraiser is now instructed to require that the importing invoices shall be based upon dutiable value as specified in a decision issued in October, 1911. In this decision, Secretary MacVeagh had taken the ground, first, that the amount paid for authorship (in the form of honorarium or royalty) need not be included as a factor in fixing the dutiable value.

He decided further that this dutiable value was to be in line with the market value or wholesale price at which the books in question were sold, or are offered for sale, in the country of origin. In the letter of January 30, 1914, which is connected with this instruction, the Secretary takes the ground that in case in the country of origin the book is sold in wholesale quantities, not exceeding, say, one dozen copies, the amount paid to the London publisher for such dozen copies, shall constitute the market value or the dutiable value upon which duty shall be paid for editions imported into the United States in supplies of 500 copies or 1,000 copies.

The purpose of this letter is to make clear that if the policy indicated in this interpretation is to be maintained, the business of importing into this market books in editions will be brought practically to a close. If an illustrated or technical book such as those above referred to is published in London, for instance, at 24/-, it will be sold to the wholesale dealer at from 18/- down to 16/6.

Under this interpretation of the term "market value," the importing publisher would be called upon to pay duty on the basis of a price of from 18/- down to 16/6.

If the edition has been printed for "joint account" and divided equally between the two markets, the purchase price for the American supply would be from 6/- to 8/-.

The calculation under which the book can be published in this market to advantage is based upon the payment of duty on this actual cost. A payment of duty on three times the actual cost of importation would not be profitable or practicable. It is to be noted that under this interpretation of the term "market value," the reduction of from twenty-five per cent. to fifteen per cent. secured through the Underwood Tariff Bill is very much more than offset. It is to be noted further that the decision of Secretary MacVeagh that authorship was not included as a dutiable item in fixing the dutiable value is also set to one side.

I am sending with this a report which I have prepared for the members of the Publishers' Copyright League, in which are given in full the text of the several Treasury decisions in question. In this report I point out why in my judgment the contention of the Secretary that books should, as far as "market value" in the country of origin is concerned, be treated "precisely like other merchandise" is not well founded and does not secure the consistent and uniform consideration of books which the Secretary has in mind, and in fact specifies as essential. "Other merchandise," as, for instance, woolen goods or linen goods, is sold in Great Britain for domestic consumption in the same quantities as those which are purchased for importation into the United States. The conditions connected with the purchase of books for importation into the United States are peculiar and are not in line with those obtaining with any other imported merchandise. In the cases above specified, the American publisher, dividing the edition with the English publisher, purchases, say, one thousand copies. No other such sale is, however, made in the market of origin, and in a number of cases the sale would be in line with that utilized in the Secretary's letter as an example of his point, not exceeding, say, twelve copies.

The importer of woolen or linen goods is able, therefore, to base his duty upon the figures of his purchase invoice because, and only because, similar quantities are sold in the market of origin. The publishers claim a similar privilege, namely, the right to base the dutiable value upon which duty is paid in like manner upon the amount actually paid by them for the goods. I hope very much that it may be practicable for you to have this material so digested that without an undue demand upon your time, the matters at issue can be presented for your attention and for your judgment.

The publishers are hoping that it may seem to the President desirable, for the purpose of maintaining the policy expressed in the book provision of the late tariff act, to issue a Presidential Order that should prevent this serious interference with the business of importing books in editions, a business which is, as explained, important not only for the interests of the leading American publishers, but for the literary and educational interests of the country as a whole.

I am, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM,
Secretary American Publishers' Copyright League.

President Wilson.

BOOKS IMPORTED IN EDITIONS—A REVIEW OF RECENT TREASURY DEPARTMENT RULINGS.

UNDER date of February 12, 1914, Mr. George Haven Putnam, as secretary made a special report to the American Publishers' Copyright League on the interpretation of the provisions of the Tariff Act covering the importation of books in editions. The report, which is submitted for the informaton of publishers, booksellers and book-buyers generally, all of whom have a direct interest in the matter, covers some twelve pages, and gives the various conflicting rulings on the subject which have been promulgated by the Treasury Department during the past year or two.

Mr. Putnam's report opens as follows:

There has, during the past year or two, been uncertainty in regard to the interpretation of the provisions of the Tariff Act covering the importation of books.

The more important of the matters in question have been the interpretation of the term "market value" in the country of origin as applied to books manufactured abroad and imported in editions for publication in the United States; and the obligation to include as a factor in the dutiable value of such imported editions the compensation paid to the author, whether under the heading of authorship, such compensation may be in the form of an honorarium, a series of payments contin-gent upon the sales, or a royalty on the copies sold, payable as the sales are made. There has been some variety, and from time to time an apparent inconsistency, in the decisions or instructions from the Treasury Department on these matters and in the application of such instructions by the Customs authorities in New York.

In response to an application made by the Secretary of the League in July, 1911, the publishers received through the Appraiser of the Port, a Treasury Decision, No. 31,903, dated October 5, 1911. This decision had to do with the appraisement of books under Subsection II of Section 28 of the Act of August, 1909. This decision has now been confirmed by the Treasury Department of the present Administration as controlling the application of the corresponding provision in the later tariff statute which went into effect in October, 1913. It seems desirable, therefore, to present the text in full for the use of importing publishers and for the information of the booktrade generally.

[The text of the Treasury Department decision is here given.]*

In the above letter, the Secretary of the Treasury (Mr. MacVeagh) takes the ground that it was not the intention of Congress to impose a tax upon literature or upon authorship. Mr. MacVeagh reaffirms the decision arrived at as far back as April 11, 1877, to the effect that:

> the royalty to be paid on the sale of imported books does not constitute a dutiable item, and this royalty is, therefore, not to be included in the appraised value of such books.

In the final clause of his letter, the Secretary concludes that:

> The wholesale price at which are sold in the principal markets of the country of exportation the books in question constitutes "the foreign market value."

It will, I judge, be a convenience to bring into print at this point for connection and comparison with the above and with later decisions, a letter from the Treasury Department to the Appraiser in New York bearing date July 18, 1912.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, July 18th, 1912.

Hon. FRANCIS W. BIRD,
Appraiser of Merchandise,
New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. BIRD:

Referring to T. D. 31,903 and subsequent correspondence and conferences concerning the appraisement of books bound and in sheets, with and without royalty charges, I have given careful consideration to all of the reports received from our officers and to the objections raised by importers, and have come to the following conclusions:

1st. That when bound books are freely sold or offered for sale abroad in the wholesale quantities in which they are imported to this country, they should be appraised as set forth in paragraph No. 3 of the conclusions reached in T. D. 31,903.

2d. That when bound books are not sold in such quantities abroad, but are only sold by retail there, and are imported as editions or by wholesale into this country, the actual prices paid by the purchaser, not including the royalty charge, if any, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes, provided that in no instance shall the appraised value be less than 30 per centum of the foreign list price.

3d. That when books in sheets are not sold in such quantities abroad, but are only sold by retail there, and are imported as editions or by wholesale into this country, the actual price paid by the purchaser, not including the royalty charge, if any, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes, provided that in no instance shall the appraised value be less than 15 per centum of the foreign list price.

Please inform all of the importers who are interested in these questions of this decision, and that it has been reached after consideration and analysis of the facts and figures submitted from all sources.

T. D. 31,903 is hereby amended in accordance with these instructions.

Yours very truly,
J. F. CURTIS,
Assistant Secretary.

It is to be noted that under this instruction, the Appraisal Decision of October, 1911, T. D. 31,903, is "declared to be amended."

The Treasury Department in July, 1912, took the ground that > when bound books are not sold abroad in the quantities in which they are imported in editions for publication here, the actual prices paid by the purchaser, not including the charge, if any, for royalty, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes.

This decision is coupled with the restriction that for books imported bound, the appraised value shall be not less than "thirty per centum of the foreign list price" (that is to say, of the catalogue or published retail price); and that in the case of books imported in sheets, such an "appraised value shall not be less than fifteen per centum of the foreign list price."

This interpretation of the law constituted, it may be noted, a concession in the matter of the dutiable value as compared with the conclusion reached a year earlier by Mr. MacVeagh, to the effect that > the dutiable market value of books imported in editions must be not less than the price at which the book is sold in the country of origin in the usual wholesale quantities.

Under Mr. MacVeagh's decision, the Appraiser could insist that the duty on a thousand copies of a book imported, whether bound or in sheets, and constituting perhaps half the entire edition printed, shall be not less than the price at which a dozen copies of the same book are sold by the British publisher to the British wholesale dealer.

In June, 1913, the Treasury Department of the present Administration issued a decision "modifying" the minimum and "appraised value" (that is to say, increasing the amount of the basis of valuation on which duty must be paid). The text of this letter follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, June 7, 1913.

The Department's letter of July 18, 1912, is modified as follows:

(1) That the minimum appraised value of bound books published at net prices, covered by paragraph 2 of the said letter, be raised from 30 to 40 per cent. of the foreign list price.

(2) That the minimum appraised value of books in sheets, published at net prices, covered by paragraph 3 of the said letter, be raised from 15 per cent. to 16⅔ per cent. of the foreign list price.

It is further provided:

(1) That when so-called "subject" books, which are only sold at retail abroad, are imported bound, the actual price paid by the purchaser, not including the royalty charge if any, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes, provided that in no instance shall the appraised value be less than 30 per cent. of the published price.

(2) That when such books, which are only sold at retail abroad, are imported in sheets, the actual price paid by the purchaser, not including the royalty charge if any, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes, provided that in no instance shall the appraised value be less than 12½ per cent. of the foreign published price.

*For this decision see PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, Oct. 21, 1911, p. 1701.

It is understood that where books have a foreign market value they should be appraised at such value, as provided in paragraph 3, of T. D. 31,903, of October 5, 1911.

Under this instruction, the Treasury Department (now representing a new Administration) decided that for volumes published abroad at net prices, the minimum appraised value of volumes imported in editions shall be for supplies bound not less than "forty per cent. of the foreign list price" (that is to say of the published or retail price in the country of origin) and for supplies imported in sheets not less than "sixteen-and-two-thirds per cent. of such price."

It may be noted that this decision increased by thirty-three-and-one-third per cent. the basis of duty for bound books, and by ten per cent. the basis of duty for books imported in sheets.

The Department was at this date prepared to confirm the conclusion previously reached that, subject to the above restrictions, the actual price paid by the purchaser, not including the royalty charge, if any, should be taken as the market value for appraisal purposes. . . .

The department decides further that for books published abroad subject to the full wholesale discounts, the limit or restriction on the appraised value shall be for bound books not less than thirty per cent. of the published price, and for books imported in sheets not less than twelve-and-a-half per cent. of such price. The purpose of this order was to make a distinction for transatlantic publications between books published on what is called the "regular" or "subject" discount list and those issued on the so-called "net" list.

It seemed desirable to ascertain which of the conclusions expressed in the decisions above quoted represented the present instructions of the Department, and for this purpose the Secretary of your League submitted inquiry in December last as to the regulations or instructions now in force covering the importation of books. He received, under date of January 30, 1914, a letter signed by C. S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. The concluding paragraph of this letter, which makes specific decision as to the present policy of the Department, is given here separately:

I am of the opinion that the rules laid down by the Department in its decision of October 5th, 1911 (T. D. 31,903), correctly interpret the law, and I am, therefore, instructing appraising officers to be guided thereby.

As this letter of January, 1914, makes no reference to the decisions or instructions of July, 1912, and of June, 1913, your Secretary thought it in order to address a further inquiry to the Department for the purpose of ascertaining whether these decisions, more or less conflicting with that of 1911, are to be considered as superseded. Assistant Secretary Hamlin writes, under date of February 5, 1914:

I find that I had neglected to state in my letter of January 30th that the instructions issued by the Department in July, 1912, and in June, 1913, were revoked. The Appraisers in New York and in Boston have been specifically instructed that these rulings have been revoked and have been directed to be guided in connection with future importations by the principles laid down in Treasury Decision 31,903, October 5, 1911.

I print in this connection a decision arrived at by the Board of Appraisers of the New York Custom House in November, 1913. This decision had to do more particularly with the question of duty on authorship in the form of royalty. By implication, however, it affirmed the right of the importers to make importation in the form of sheets of books printed abroad, paying duty on the basis of the actual purchase price, provided that such appraised value shall not be less than twelve-and-a-half per cent. of the foreign published price. [Decision of Mr. McClelland is here printed.]*

In his letter of January 30, 1914, the Secretary makes the following specific statements:

The attempt to apply one rule to editions imported by a publisher and to similar supplies imported by a dealer in this country either from a publisher or from a dealer abroad, results in the establishment of a dual system whereas the law contemplates and equity demands a uniform rule. This rule is, that all merchandise, including books, shall appraised at the market value or wholesale price as sold in the usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation, regardless of the conditions under which the supplies are purchased or the prices are paid.

The publishers would be inclined to differ with the Department in the opinion of Assistant Secretary Hamlin that such a decision secures a "uniform rule." The "uniform rule" that the importing publishers have been trying to secure, and which would, as they contend, be for the interest no less of the booktrade than of the book-buying community generally, would provide for a payment of duty by all importers based on the actual cost of the editions imported instead of upon an arbitrary or guess-work "market value" to be established by the Customs authorities on this side.

Mr. Hamlin goes on to point out that:

If there be no market value in the country of exportation for books imported in editions, then the cost of production is to be ascertained and certain percentages added for expenses and for profit, but such books are to be appraised at no less than the price at which such or similar imported books are sold in the usual wholesale quantities in the United States after making the statutory deductions.

The term "United States" is possibly a clerical error for the "country of origin," or the "home market."

Mr. Hamlin's letter continues as follows:

In Paragraph 3 of your letter, you point out that books are from time to time printed for the joint account of the English and the American publisher, and that under such arrangement, the American publisher takes over such portion of the edition (one-half, or more, or less), as may be required for the American trade, paying for the same the proportion of the total expense of production.

In such a case, if no market value for the books had been established or could be ascertained to the satisfaction of the appraiser, recourse would be had to Paragraph L of Section 3, and the books would be appraised at the cost of production, plus the additions for general expenses and profit, but at not less than the market value of such or similar imported books as sold in usual wholesale quantities in the United States after making the statutory deductions for expenses, duty and profit.

If the term "United States" repeated in this paragraph is not to be considered as a clerical error for the "home market" or for the "country of origin," the Department is here taking the ground that the dutiable value to be arrived at by the appraisal shall be identical with that at which the importing publisher may himself, after the book is in readiness, make sale of copies in this country in the usual wholesale quantities. Such a decision constitutes a novelty in the series of interpretation of the Tariff provisions relating to books.

The letter proceeds:

In Paragraph 4, you state that books imported in editions are, according to the usual routine, and for the purpose of permitting simultaneous publication in the two markets, shipped in advance of their publication in England, and that of such books no sales have been made in England other than that made to the American importing publisher. In this case, there being no market value established at the time of exportation, the books would be subject to appraisement on the cost of production as above stated.

In Paragraph 5, you state that under another class of arrangement, the American publisher takes over a portion of the edition manufactured by the English publisher, paying for the same the actual cost of production, plus a commission to the English publisher, and that for such a book as a rule no sales have been made, or are made in similar quantities, and that the price charged by the English publisher for a dozen copies of the book sold in England bears no relation to the price charged to the American publisher for his portion of the edition.

The "market value" (i. e., the basis of dutiable value) is not the price paid for unusual quantities or for quantities such as those purchased by the American importing publishers, but the price at which the merchandise is freely sold or offered for sale to all purchasers in the usual wholesale quantities. If the usual quantity sold to dealers in England is a dozen copies, then a dozen copies is the "wholesale quantity" as defined by the law. This rule places every importer on an equal basis so far as the payment of duty is concerned.

I had pointed out that for a large class of English books, the so-called published price was but a temporary price, and that within a year or more after the publication such books were frequently issued by the publishers at a price constituting a very material reduction from the original or temporary price. I had given this as one of the grounds why the English retail price ought not to be taken into account at all in fixing "dutiable value" for this market. Mr. Hamlin replies:

The fact that the price of books abroad may, subsequent to the exportation of the American edition, be reduced by the English publisher, does not furnish justification for departing from the law in appraising the imported books. It frequently happens in other lines that prices decline after the importation of the goods. That is one of the risks of all commercial enterprises.

The importing publishers will take the ground that the Secretary is failing to make the proper distinction between an article like a book which has an advertised published price in England, for instance in 1913, 24/–, and in 1914, 10/6, or 6/–, and articles like dress silks or cotton goods, for which there never has been, and never could be, an advertised retail price.

Mr. Hamlin also fails to bear in mind an essential difference between other imported merchandise, to which he from time to time makes reference, and books. In the case, for instance, of steel plates, or woolens, or dress goods, sales are continually made in the market of origin which are equal in extent and in value to the sales of the same goods made for export to the United States. It is only in the case of a book manufactured in England, the edition of which is to be divided between the two countries, that there are, and under the conditions of the case there can be, no sales in the home market in any way to be compared in extent or in value to the (so-called) sale made of the supply shipped to the United States. The business of dividing an edition between two markets and that of selling a dozen copies across the counter are, as frequently emphasized in previous explanations to the Customs authorities, entirely distinct, and ought not to be confused. It is, therefore, misleading to attempt to arrive at the "market" value for books by utilizing for the purpose comparison with other merchandise which never is, and never can be, handled in the same fashion as are books.

Mr. Hamlin proceeds:

In Paragraph 9, you suggest that in arriving at a dutiable value for books in editions, a comparison could be made with the prices at which similar quantities are sold by the English publishers to importing publishers in Australia or in Canada. The law, however, requires merchandise to be appraised at the price at which it is freely offered for sale to all purchasers in the usual wholesale quantities. If merchandise is sold for export at prices less than it is sold for consumption or for use in the country of origin, it is the latter price which fixes the value for dutiable purposes.

The letter closes with the decision above specified, to the effect that instructions have been given to put into force the regulations of October 5, 1911. As before explained, it seemed desirable, for convenience of comparison, to place the concluding paragraph of the letter, which expresses the present policy of the Department, in immediate relation to the earlier Department decisions.

The policy announced in this letter of January 30th, puts to one side the decision of the previous Secretary of the Treasury (representing, it may be borne in mind, a Republican and a protectionist Administration) to the effect that compensation paid for authorship was not to constitute a factor in the dutiable value. With the dutiable value fixed, as the Secretary now decides it must be fixed, on the basis of the sale of small quantities in the country of origin, there is, of course, no opportunity of deducting from the invoice expressing the dutiable value, the amount paid for authorship. If the Secretary's letter is to be taken literally, no such reduction would be possible, even in the cases in which the authorship compensation is to be given in the form of a royalty payable only as, when, and if, the books are sold.

It may be further noted that the conclusion arrived at by Assistant Secretary Hamlin is not consistent with the decision of the Board of Appraisers of the New York Custom House in November, 1913, in the case of the importation of Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co., the full text of which decision is given above.

The interpretation given of the all important term "market value" must, as it is pointed out, have the effect of increasing the amount of duty to be paid on imported publications very much beyond the rate fixed under the earlier Republican tariff as interpreted by the Republican Secretary of the Treasury. The reduction arrived at in the tariff of 1913 in the duty on books (from twenty-five per cent. to fifteen per cent.) is to be very much exceeded by the substantial increase in the actual amount of the duty that must be paid under this new interpretation of the term "market value." It is difficult to understand why a Democratic administration, which has set forth a definite policy of lessening the tax burdens upon the people of the country, and which has done so much to carry this policy into effect, should now think it necessary or desirable to make a noteworthy exception in the case of books.

Since the above report was put into type, a further communication from the Treasury Department has been received, the text of which is printed below. This report confirms the decision presented in the letter of the Treasury Department of January 30th quoted in the main report.

The Treasury authorities confirm the policy of maintaining for books imported in editions a dutiable value in line with that at which a dozen copies, more or less, may be sold over the counter on the other side of the Atlantic. Such an interpretation of the term "market value" must, as before pointed out, block the business of importing books in editions.

Respectfully,
GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM,
Secretary.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
U. S. CUSTOMS SERVICE,
PORT OF NEW YORK, N. Y.,
Feb. 17, 1914.

MESSRS. G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS,
2 West 45th Street.
GENTLEMEN:

You are informed that under date of January 30, 1914, the Treasury Department has revoked its rulings of July 18, 1912, and June 7, 1913, relative to the appraisement of books at not less than a certain fixed percentage of the list price, and has instructed this office to apply the principles laid down in Treasury Decision 31,903 of October 5, 1911.

In conformity therewith you are informed that bound books will be appraised at the market value or wholesale price at which the same are sold in the principal markets of the country of exportation, and that when said market value or wholesale price abroad includes the charge for royalty, such charge will be included by this office in the appraised value.

Respectfully,
F. A. HIGGINS,
Appraiser.

THACKERAY MANUSCRIPT BRINGS $23,000.

THE sensation of the fifth session of the Lambert sale of Thackerayana at the Anderson Galleries came on the afternoon of February 27th, when the original manuscript and drawings by Thackeray of that most coveted fairy tale, "The Rose and the Ring," was put up and the bidding began, soon running into the thousands.

The manuscript, which is bound in red levant morocco, was finally knocked down to George D. Smith for $23,000, the top price of the sale so far, and the highest ever paid for a modern manuscript.

The next two high prices were also given by Mr. Smith. They were $1,700 for a first edition of "Vanity Fair," in two volumes, and the same price for the original manuscript of "Dr. Birch and His Young Friends," He also gave $1,150 for another copy of a first edition of "Vanity Fair." For "The Ballad of Bouillabaisse," eleven stanzas of eight lines each, entirely in the handwriting of Thackeray, E. D. North gave $835, and Dodd & Livingston paid the same price for an uncut copy of the first edition of "The Second Funeral of Napoleon," in three letters to Miss Smith, of London.

George D. Smith's purchases also included "The History of Pendennis," a first edition, in two volumes, for which he gave $900.

At the evening's session, the final one of Part II of the Lambert sale, George D. Smith gave $12,100 for the original manuscript of Thackeray's "The Adventures of Philip on His Way Through the World."

For a privately printed copy of "William Makepeace Thackeray at Clevedon Court," sixteen pages, reproduced in lithograph from drawings by Thackeray for members of the Elton family, George D. Smith paid $1,025 and F. B. Stokes gave $1,000 for the original manuscript of Thackeray's "Lecture on George IV." The total of the final session was $21,711, making the grand total for the six sessions $142,635.85.

A LONDON LETTER.

NOTEWORTHY NEW ENGLISH BOOKS OF THE SPRING.

London, February 14, 1914.

WE ARE now well enough into the English spring publishing season for a glance around it to be possible. What is it going to be like, what sort of books does it promise us—in fine, is it going to make up for the not wholly good winter publishing season which we had?

The most interesting thing so far is the inauguration by that prince of English reprinters, Mr. J. M. Dent, of his Wayfarers' Library. An ordinary person might think that there were enough cheap reprints on the English market even to meet the huge demand there now is for books of the sort. The Nelsons of Edinburg invented the "sevenpenny" and they have made it a magnificent success. Other houses followed their example and if they have not always found success so completely, still they have more than made ends meet with their sevenpenny libraries. We had begun, however, to say that the market was pretty full, when along comes Mr. Dent with his Wayfarers' Library, which is to cost a shilling net a volume.

The fact that he makes it this price, although in great part it is to consist of novels, is an illustration of the courage with which he enters upon the venture. The truth is that Mr. Dent has in England a great public of his own for whatever reprints he likes to produce. He has won that public fairly and honorably, after a long period of hard work. He learned the art of producing a book while he was a young man and a book-binder, and that is the secret which has carried him so successfully into the high ranks of English publishing houses. Other people produce attractive reprints, comely reprints, but somehow he gets into their format a particular Dent element which you may call "bookishness." This quality was in his Temple Shakespeare and his Temple Classics, also in Everyman's Library, and now it will be found once more in his Wayfarers' Library. One cannot describe just the particular elements which Mr. Dent gets into the making of a reprint, but they can never be mistaken. Perhaps he could not explain what they are himself, and usually they are the result of an exhaustive series of experiments. Mr. Dent is never done with the format of a book until it pleases him. He has been working on the binding, paper, type and illustrations of this Wayfarers' Library pretty well all the winter, and, launching it on the English-reading world in the spring, it is a success at its commencement.

When we turn to the new spring books just ready, or about to appear, we are at once struck by the number and indeed by the promise of quality of the novels. One might talk about individual stories, saying what they are about and how they have been written, but the best thing is just to group a dozen of them into a list, or shall we say "thirteen as twelve," following the fashion of the English booktrade? Well, here you are:

"The Wisdom of Damaris," by Lucas Malet.
"When Ghost Meets Ghost," by William De Morgan.
"The World Set Free," by H. G. Wells.
"The Fortunate Youth," by W. J. Locke.
"Dodo the Second," by E. F. Benson.
"The Wanderer's Necklace," by Rider Haggard.
"The Pastor's Wife, by the Author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden."
"Unto Cæsar," by the Baroness Orczy.
"It happened in Egypt," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson.
"Chance," by Joseph Conrad.
"Quinneys," by Horace Annesley Vachell.
"Initiation," by Monsignor R. H. Benson.
"The Master of Merripit," by Eden Phillpotts.

Probably these are the outstanding new novels of the English spring season, but there are others which demand honorable mention beside them. Mr. Jack London's "Valley of the Moon" is one; Mr. Hugh Walpole's "Duchess of Wrexe" another; "Old Andy's Trip," by Miss Dorothea Conyers, a third; "The Lost Tribes," by George Birmingham, a fourth; "Garden Oats," by Mrs. Alice Herbert, a fifth; and "The Rocks of Valpré," by Miss Ethel Dell, that strangely popular authoress, a sixth. Moreover, there are on the literary carpet several unusually good volumes of short stories as, for instance, "Odd Ten-Minute Stories," by Mr. Algernon Blackwood, and "The Cost of Wings," by Richard Dehan, who wrote "The Dop Doctor" and who, apart from her pseudonym, is Miss Clo Graves.

One might also mention a first novel which seems to promise subsequent success, namely, "The Marriage of Cecilia," by Miss Maude Leeson, which Fisher Unwin publishes. A comparatively new novelist, on whom it is worth while keeping an eye, is Mr. W. L. George, who has written a singularly fine study of English and French human nature in a tale called "The Making of an Englishman," which the Constables publish. A second novelist who goes steadily up here, whatever she may do in America, is the lady who writes as "J. E. Buckrose," and who has just published a new romance entitled, "Gay Morning." Mr. G. K. Chesterton, like the poor, we have always with us, but it is hardly possible to speak of his new volume, "The Flying Inn" as a novel. Rather it is just a Chestertonian excursion with the usual Chestertonian "alarums."

A SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY FOR ST. VALENTINE'S DAY. DRESSED BY THE KORNER & WOOD CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO. THE BOOK IS A HOUGHTON MIFFLIN NOVEL.

So much for the world of fiction, and now for a dip into the spring world of serious books and that may be accomplished best and most fruitfully by again making a list of "thirteen as twelve," thus:

"The Life and Letters of Lady Hester Stanhope," by her niece, the Duchess of Cleveland.

"The Reminiscences of Miss Fortescue," the well-known actress.

"A Dictionary of Madame de Sévigné," by Edward FitzGerald, being a series of essays on people mentioned in her letters.

"Notes of a Son and a Brother," by Henry James.

"The Life of Oscar Wilde," by Frank Harris.

"The Berry Papers," by Lewis Melville.

"The Correspondence of Mrs. Anna Jameson," by Mrs. Steuart Erskine.

"Ouida": A Memoir, by Elizabeth Lee.

"In the Footsteps of the Brontës," by Mrs. Ellis Chadwick.

"My Days of Adventure," by Ernest Vizetelly.

"Imperial Germany," by Prince von Bülow.

"Pre-Raphaelitism and the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood," by the late Holman Hunt, a new edition, making practically a new book.

"The Romance of Fraud," by Tighe Hopkins.

You will see from the lists which have been given, that we are promised a good crop of spring books, and it can only be hoped and prayed that when they are all out, there may be a public ready and able to buy and read them.

JAMES MILNE.

"PRICE CUTTING" WINS.

IN refusing to interfere with the decision of the Second Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in the Waltham Watch Company case the Supreme Court of the United States last Tuesday again opposed the commercial practice of fixing the resale prices on manufactured articles.

The Waltham Company appealed from a decision in favor of Charles A. Keene, a dealer in New York, who "cut prices" on Waltham watches. The Waltham Company sought to enjoin him and also collect damages. The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals decided against the Waltham Company.

The Supreme Court rendered no opinion. The request for a writ of certiorari was under advisement only a week.

POSTAL MATTERS.

PARCEL POST OPPONENTS DEFEATED.

THE proposed amendment to the post-office appropriation bill stripping the Postmaster General of power to lower rates or to change the regulations of the parcel post, were thrown out by the Senate on February 27th, 33 to 24.

MAGAZINE SUES FOR DAMAGES.

THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE COMPANY filed suit in the Supreme Court this week against New York City Postmaster, Edward M. Morgan, for $100,000 damages. The suit is the result of statements made by the Postmaster after his order holding up 10,000 bags of the February issue of the magazine had been overruled by order of President Wilson.

WORLD WIDE "PENNY POSTAGE" WITHIN A YEAR.

SIR JOHN HENNIKER HEATON, "father of penny postage," in a speech before the British Chamber of Commerce in Paris, March 2d, prophesied the introduction of a universal two-cent postage rate within a year. He proposed the abolition of political frontiers throughout the world for postal and telegraphic purposes and advocated a uniform two-cent telegraphic rate in Europe preliminary to its extension to the whole world.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR JOHN TENNIEL, for many decades the leading British cartoonist, died on February 26th at the age of ninety-four. Sir John Tenniel was better known to the general public of the present day in this country as the genial illustrator of Lewis Carroll's two masterpieces, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Alice Through the Looking Glass," than as the satirical political cartoonist. But in the Civil War days his American cartoons in Punch were as gall and wormwood to the North.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA.

ON Friday evening February 20th, the Booksellers' Association of Philadelphia held their annual meeting at the Franklin Inn Club. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Robert W. Staton, of Staton Brothers; Vice-president Walter B. Easton, of John Wanamaker; Treasurer, William M. Bains, 1215 Market Street; Secretary, Harry F. MacIlvain, of H. W. Fisher and Company.

PERSONAL NOTES.

JAMES F. DOONAN, the manager of the book department of P. J. Kenedy & Sons, is visiting the book centres of England and Ireland.

FREDERICK HOPE, carrying the B. W. Huebsch line of books, will visit the trade between New York and Kansas City starting from New York about March 9th.

WILLIAM G. HASTINGS, for nineteen years connected with the E. P. Judd Company, of New Haven, has become manager of the retail store at Philadelphia of the Presbyterian Board of Publication.

EDWIN O. CHAPMAN, publisher and editor of The Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer, is recovering from a severe case of grippe which has confined him to his house for the past few weeks.

WALTER A. DYER, author of "The Lure of the Antique" and "The Richer Life," after eight years with Doubleday, Page and Company, has resigned his position as editor of Country Life in America and will devote his attention to magazine writing. He is succeeded by Henry H. Saylor, formerly of McBride, Nast and Company.

IN THE Travelers' number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, we gave the name of Kenneth E. Palmer as the Crowell representative in the Northwest and portions of the Pacific Coast. We are informed that Mr. Palmer is no longer with the T. Y. Crowell Co., and that their line is now carried in that territory by A. L. Bonney.

WILLIAM H. MOOK, of Fleming H. Revell Company and Miss Mildred Kaltenbach were married Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride's parents at Yonkers. Mr. Mook, who has been for many years associated with the sales department of Revell's, started immediately after the ceremony upon a trip to the Pacific Coast with his bride, planning to visit the trade all along the line. His combined wedding and business tour will include New Orleans, La.; Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso, Texas; Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Barbara and San Francisco, Cal.; Portland, Oregon; Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane, Wash.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Colorado Springs and Denver, Colorado.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE KENTUCKY State Text-book Commission bill was reported favorably in the Senate on February 25th.

MAUD LEESON'S new novel, "The Marriage of Cecilia," published by Putnam, promises to be of the wholesome order of fiction—with plenty of romance provided.

ROWLAND THOMAS, who created something unusual when he wrote "Fatima," has written another unique romance which Little, Brown & Company will publish early in April under the title "Felicidad."

A LARGE VOLUME of uncollected writings by Bret Harte, consisting of stories, poems, and essays, has been compiled by Mr. Charles Meeker Kozlay, and will be issued in March by Houghton Mifflin Company.

"JOHN WARD, M.D.," (Kennerley) which has been characterized by Edwin Markham as "The first eugenic novel," appears this week in England, coincident with the publication of a second American edition.

A CONTRIBUTION to non-fiction literature which is now appearing in its third edition is Dr. Moffatt's "New Translation of the New Testament," offered by the George H. Doran Company. This is a companion and not a rival version.

WE NOTE WITH interest that this month's cover design on Good Housekeeping is the same as that used two years ago for the cover of the issue of the Book Review for November, 1912—a Coles Phillips drawing published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE AND COMPANY announce a uniform edition of Conrad, bound in limp leather of a deep sea blue. In this uniform edition there will be seven volumes—"Chance," "Youth," "Romance," "Falk," "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "Lord Jim," and "Twixt Land and Sea."

COMPLETE HAPPINESS, of course, is reserved for few—not every boy can meet "Matty." But many thousands can enjoy the by no means small pleasure of reading the new series in which Christy Mathewson tells of baseball in story form. The first of these "Baseball Nine Books" will be published by Dodd, Mead & Company under the title "Pitcher Pollock."

ALTHOUGH Caroline Lockhart met with good success in "Me-Smith" and "The Lady Doc," she has chosen to write in "The Full of the Moon" a different kind of story—though one laid again in the West. This novel is one of Lippincott's leaders, together with "The Red Emerald," "The Best Man" and "Anybody But Anne," Carolyn Wells's new "Fleming Stone" detective yarn.

A DE LUXE VOLUME which can safely be called unusually handsome has just been published by Librairie Armand Colin of Paris, Auguste Rodin's "Les Cathedrales de France." A hundred plates from water-color drawings by Rodin are included in this large volume, which in paper, binding and all details is both substantial and artistic. The introduction is by Charles Morice. The work comes at 50 francs and at 70 francs.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of a new star in the literary firmament of two centuries ago might well be received with suspicion. But Ludvig Holberg, the greatest of Danish dramatists, will be such to most American readers. The life and study of Holberg, which has just appeared from the Harvard University Press, gives a truly fascinating picture of the many relationships that made Holberg the most cosmopolitan figure in the literature of his time.

D. VAN NOSTRAND COMPANY have published a carefully classified catalogue of technical, industrial, engineering and scientific publications covering over 200 pages. A casual review shows such headings as "Sugar," "Brewing," "Irrigation," "Automobiles," "Patents," and diverse other topics, covering on an average a page each, the entries being given in full bibliographical detail, including contents list. An author index and index to subjects make reference easy.

SINCE THE BASEBALL players will probably keep on running as long as the sands of time, it may safely be assumed that such a set of books as "The Big League Series" will not soon lose its appeal. Barse & Hopkins have ready in "the line up," as they call it, five volumes by Burt L. Standish, beginning with "Lefty o' the Bush" and ending with "Brick King, Backstop." Lefty is the manager of a "bush" league team, and he fights enough plots and intrigues to unnerve any but a game American ball-player.

THE STORY of the first and only ascent to the summit and the climbing of Mt. McKinley, the highest mountain peak on the North American continent, will be published in book form by Charles Scribner's Sons early in the month. It is called "The Ascent of Denali"—the Indian name of the mountain—and is written by the leader of the little expedition that achieved it, Hudson Stuck, D.D., Archdeacon of the Yukon. It is an adventurous story. The ascent required more than a month, and, during that time, the party were in continuous danger.

SOME THREE WEEKS ago a rather smooth individual blew into Omaha, Nebraska, and cut a wide swath as Henry Sydnor Harrison, the author of "V. V.'s Eyes." He met quite a few people, newspaper men and booksellers, and gave an elaborate luncheon to a number of them. Then a day or two later—a Saturday night, just as the stores were closing—he tried to cash a check, explaining that he had only a few cents in his pocket, and must have money to tide him over Sunday. Fortunately, he did not get the money. The case is another warning to members of the trade.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY are beginning this month their enormous advertising campaign for Harold Bell Wright's "The Eyes of the World," announced for publication on August 8th. To every bookseller making a stock order for the book before the first day of August the publishers will present a special leather-bound copy appropriately boxed. Each copy will have on the inside of the front cover, inserted when binding, a photogravure portrait of Mr. Wright and Mr. Reynolds. Each copy will also be especially autographed by each of them. Money will not buy one of these copies. Sales agents or jobbers through whom orders are placed will forward to the publishers the bookseller's name and address.

BROWNE AND HOWELL COMPANY are using an oval two-inch paster—(of suffrage yellow,

"BOOK STAMP" WITH WHICH BROWNE & HOWELL ARE ADVERTISING "The Congresswoman"
(The Original is yellow and black) but that may be accidental)—to advertise "The Congresswoman." The paster shows the dome of the Capitol. Aside from its political theme the story largely concerns Debonair Pike, son of the woman representative from Oklahoma, a type of the child of a wealthy parent, impatient of control, leaving school before his education is half finished, set loose with a pocketful of money, for which he renders no account, and with nothing to do but help girls and boys as idle as himself to kill time. It takes an extraordinary situation to pull Debonair to his feet and open his mother's eyes to her own folly.

H. DE VERE STACPOOLE, whose translation of the Poems of François Villon has just been published in London and will soon appear here, writes from Italy to his publishers, John Lane Company: "I have measured the reviews, both resenting and approving, and they amount to 9 yards, 1 foot. Not a word will I take back; Villon was great. He was the first humanitarian to speak to the world after Christ. No one has a greater admiration for Stevenson than I have, but his article was a literary crime. It has labelled Villon, in the popular mind, as a petty thief. I believe Stevenson was having his knife not into Villon but into the Swinburne-Rossetti people of the '80's,—the mad-bad-sad-glad-brother crowd."

EVEN THE LEAST indulgent mother could hardly refuse to "let" her children amuse themselves along the lines suggested by the forthcoming additions to the "When Mother Lets Us Series":—"When Mother Lets Us Make Paper Box Furniture," by Grace Ellingwood Rich, of the New York Teachers' College, and "When Mothers Lets Us Make Gifts," by Mary B. Grubb, formerly supervisor of Art in Baton Rouge, La., and author of "Industrial Primary Reader." With the help of Miss Rich's hints children can make their own play-furniture at small expense while Miss Grubb's volume tells the boys and girls how to make useful and attractive gifts such as fancy boxes, candle shades, fancy bags, home bound books, desk blotters, cards for Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving and table scarfs.

THE BUNGALOW BOOK AND TOY COMPANY have added a grocery store to their line of toy books. This will be uniform in style to the kitchen and living room units, but different in design and color. Another spring novelty will be "Alice and the Wonderland People," the first of a series of stencil picture books. It will be printed in full colors on tinted paper and will present, in attractive flat stencil designs, the favorite characters in "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," each with an appropriate caption. The book is so arranged that it can be readily taken apart, and the illustrations can be placed upon the wall in a series, forming a dado or frieze for a child's room. Board binding, craft paper, label in full colors and silk ribbon, make the volume a handsome gift book.

THE FOLLOWING IS taken from an editorial in the issue for Nov. 7th of the Börsenblatt für den Deutschen Buchhandels. "Not only from a national but from a purely commercial point of view, one of the most important duties of the German booktrade is to endeavor to acquire new markets abroad and to develop those which we already have. As goals for these efforts two countries especially America and China, have recently come into the foreground. Not only the importance of the two countries, but also the especially favorable conditions, induced the Executive Committee of the "Börsenverein" to call the attention of the German booktrade to these two nations. In the United States the large German population furnishes occasion for extraordinary measures to strengthen in these former German subjects their intellectual ties with the Fatherland. But it will also prove of value to help to foster the cultural relations between America and Germany, to make our literature easily accessible to educated Americans, to render the American market more receptive of German literary works."

PICK-UPS.

CONSISTENCY?

AMONG THE superstitions that haunt newspaper offices is the one that printing the names of stores alienates advertisers. When an elevator in a Broadway department store falls, for instance, and injures some one, many newspapers are afraid to print the name of the store wherein the accident occurred. Why not be consistent? Why not!

PRESIDENT WILSON has decided to lift the embargo on exportation of arms to a certain Southern nation.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

HISTORY OF GERMAN BOOKS CONCLUDED.*

THE FOURTH and concluding volume of the "History of the German Booktrade," a work begun thirty-eight years ago under the direction of Dr. Eduard Brockhaus, who lived to see it completed, testifies once more to inexhaustible German erudition and persevering, undiscouraged German work. The first volume, to which Dr. Friedrich Kapp had given seven years of work, ended by his death in 1884, was published in 1886. Twenty-two years elapsed before the appearance of the second volume in 1908 was followed by the third in 1909. Dr. Johann Goldfriedrich, general librarian and special archæologist of the Börsenverein heroically undertook the completion of the work, but his many professional duties and a long illness in 1910, combined with his plan of bringing together the first detached, widely separated volumes and putting modern methods to meeting modern needs in sifting and using his daily growing material, has again consumed four years. The volume only exhaustively covers to the close of 1909, but a concluding chapter connects the historic facts with conditions of the present day and brings it virtually to date of publication in November, 1913. A supplementary volume containing complete index to all four in one alphabet with subject, biographical and catchword entries will be an invaluable reference work for every library. "The History of the German Booktrade" covers the political and economical, as well as the literary and biographical history of Germany and gives an enlightening history of the trades systems from their origin, when Germany was under foreign rule, until its interests were centralized under one government. It is fitting the work should appear practically simultaneously with the great book manufacturing exhibits of Leipzig.

We hope from time to time to draw from Dr. Goldfriedrich's contribution to this rather overpowering "Geschichte" extracts of material, much of which is as invaluable to English readers, when translated, as to German.

Story tells how Tom Benton buys a second-hand automobile, to operate it between the railroad station and the town proper—how the liverymen who had done all the hauling from the station oppose him—how the son of one of the liverymen is captain of the school football team and puts Tom out of the eleven—how Tom overcomes all difficulties and becomes football captain himself

Barnes-Grundy, Mrs. Mabel Sarah. Patricia plays a part. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 8+417 p. D. $1.35 n.

Patricia Hastings, lovely, rich and an orphan, objects to being wooed for her money, so she determines to leave her English home and go to Mentone, stay at a second-class pension, and be liked for herself. Of course a nice man finds her, and the rest of the tale is just a love story of the right sort, for, after a misunderstanding which seems gigantic to the lovers, but is by no means unsurmountable, the wedding-bells peal and everyone is happy.

François Boucher, the celebrated Court painter of Louis XV, was perhaps the most characteristic of the distinguished throng of painters of that period. In no sense is this a purely technical book on the life of Boucher; it is enlivened with anecdotes of his artistic and literary friends and of the brilliant society in which they lived. Index.

Benson, Rev. Rob. Hugh. Initiation. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 447 p. D. $1.35 n.

Story of the regeneration of a man, born to the good things of this world, but selfishly trying to avoid the common responsibilities of humanity. Sir Nevill was by no means wicked or hard-hearted, but brought up in a sheltered, pampered, highly-cultured existence, he unconsciously was an egoist, turning from his church and from all unpleasantnesses in life. Tells how blow after blow was required to redeem this man—his broken engagement to a girl, who, though herself a selfish type, succeeded in making Sir Nevill for the first time conscious of his own self-absorption, his physical inheritance from a wild father, the unremitting love and attention of his devoted aunt—how these and more finally completed Sir Nevill's "initiation."

Boston and Boston society people make the setting. Francis Evans, shrewd, ambitious, forceful, clever, who makes his way up until he becomes president of the powerful St. Botolph Trust Company, and marries one of the finest girls of the old set, learns by living that he cannot bluff Boston society. His wife, the other man in the case, his neighbors and friends all demand one thing of a man, but they demand that inexorably. What that demand is, and how it is revealed to the president of the St. Botolph Trust Company and to the reader, make the story.

Beaumont and Fletcher collaborated so closely that it has been difficult for critics to distinguish their individual work. Here, professor of English language and literature in the University of California, dispels this confusion and draws definite portraits of the dramatists at the several stages of their existence; ancestry, family, youth, schooling, love affairs, literary activities and posthumous reputation. Index.

George, W. L. The making of an Englishman. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 8+424 p. D. $1.35 n.

A thoroughly French boy grows up with a strange, exalted admiration for all things English. He is offered a clerkship in a London office, which gives the chance to associate with the wonderful English. In London he observes, he wonders, he admires, and he becomes familiar with the English; clerks, lodging-house keepers, servants, ladies, gents and gentlemen, yet, in spite of his best efforts, how remote from them, how unlike, how foreign he remains. He falls more deeply than usual into love and desires to become an Englishman by means of marriage. England coldly rejects him, follow despair, disillusionment, bitterness, then he discovers the right way, and becomes an Englishman.

Story of a clerk, whose dreams of travel were at last realized. His romantic gipsying through England with an American art student, a girl who represents all the things which he has never before known, his life in New York when he returns, are all vividly told. In the end he marries a sweet, wholesome girl of his own kind and by degrees the visions he used to have with the art student fade from his consciousness.

Lincoln, Jos. Crosby, ["Joe" Lincoln, pseud.] Cap'n Dan's daughter. N. Y., Appleton. c. 390 p. il. D. $1.35 n.

Cap'n Daniel Dott, ex-skipper and proprietor of a store at Trumet, Cape Cod, is in financial difficulties. His wife, Serena Dott, is one of Trumet's social lights and is ambitious for further advancement. An unexpected inheritance enables her to move to a more fashionable place where she begins to climb into a certain sort of society. Cap'n Dan's daughter, Gertrude, comes home to find her father much neglected and decides to bring about a change. How both her parents are happy once more and how her own love affair is for a time broken off because of misunderstanding, make up the story.

Littlewood, S: Robinson. The fairies—here and now. N. Y., McBride, Nast. 7+147 p. S. 85 c. n.

Book discusses fairies from the point of view of the everyday citizen; it appeals not only to those "who believe in fairies" but to the most skeptical of the fairy faith. History of the fairies is traced through the ages and a considerable field of folk-lore is surveyed. Some of the chapters in the book are, Fairies and the folk; Literary fairies; Nursery fairies; Land of the fairies; Faries and ourselves.

Lodge, Sir Oliver Jos. Continuity; the presidential address to the British Association for 1913; supplemented with explanatory notes. N. Y., Putnam. c. 4+131 p. D. $1 n.

Author urges belief in ultimate continuity as essential to science; regards scientific concentration as an adequate basis for philosophic generalization; believes that obscure phenomena may be expressed simply if properly faced; and points out that the non-appearance of anything perfectly uniform and omnipresent is only what should be expected, and is no argument against its real substantial existence.

☞ "During the last fortnight four very curious murders have been committed within a comparatively small area." On the victim's dress, in each case is pinned a three-cornered piece of paper, on which is written in red ink the words "The Avenger." This is the situation set forth in the beginning of this story which is not a detective tale, but is told from the point of view of persons who believe they know the murderer, but are not sure enough to act. The chief actors are the Buntings, London lodging-keepers, and their stranger lodger.

Merwin, S: Anthony the absolute; il. by R. M. Crosby. N. Y., Century Co. c. 36 p. D. $1.35 n.

Anthony tells the story—of his journey to the East to make scientific phonographic records of Chinese music; of his meeting Crocker, and, finally, Heloise, who has that rare gift, a voice perfect in its pitch. It turns out as the story proceeds, that Crocker is the husband whose coarseness and cruelty have resulted in Heloise's leaving him; and that he is pursuing her, ignorant at first of her nearness to kill her for her desertion. Anthony, with his visionary theories of life, which are hard hit by facts and by the appeal of his own heart at last, has a main part in this diverting tale.

Norris, Mrs. Kathleen. The treasure. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 7+3-186 p. pls. D. $1 n.

Tells the experiences of the Salisbury family, first with the old-fashioned, tyrannical maid, then with an efficient, college-trained young woman, who makes domestic science a profession. Poor Mrs. Salisbury finds it difficult to reconcile her ideas of mistress and "help" to this superior young person's attitude, and yet she acknowledges the girl's ability. Story is amusing but also states some of the vexed household questions and gives a possible solution.

Overland Red; a romance of the Moonstone Cañon trail; with il. by Anton Fischer. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 14+349 p. D. $1.35 n.

Tale of thrilling adventures, hairbreadth escapes, of true love of the finest types of manhood. Scene is laid in California, and alternates between the ranching country and cañons where gold-mines are to be discovered. "Overland Red" is a tramp, a poet, a cowboy, a philosopher in whom courage and daring are strangely blended with a deep sentiment and affection crudely but forcibly expressed. On her pony, Boyar, the "Rose Girl" rides into the romance bringing both happiness and pain to "Overland Red."

Randall, F. J. Somebody's luggage. N. Y., J: Lane. 3+314 p. D. $1.25 n.

Story is of a not too scrupulous gentleman, who seizes a favorable opportunity of masquerading as the heir to a fortune. He soon finds himself beset by difficulties, and his remedies only plunge him into deeper complications. The trouble is caused by the popularity of a familiar type of yellow tin box, which it is not always easy for the owner in each case to identify.

Roe, Vingie E. The primal lure; a romance of Fort Lu Cerne; il. by G: Gibbs. N. Y. c. '13. 3+350 p. D. $1.30 n.

By author of "The maid of the whispering hills." From the hour when McConnel, the masterful young factor at a tiny Hudson Bay Post, seizes Lois, the dark-eyed, beautiful French Canadian girl, and throws her into prison there begins a drama, first of hate, then of love, devotion and self-sacrifice. They are strong, passionate, primitive people in that little log-built stockade, hedged round by the dangers and privations of the grim wilderness. They do not play at fighting and they do not play at loving; and the story of two of these forest folk, two splendid specimens, is vividly told.

Tobie, Willard Nathan. Studies in the atonement. N. Y. and Cin., Meth. Bk. Concern. c. 185 p. D. 75 c. n.

Author holds to the fact and necessity of the atonement. His viewpoint is that the principle of the Cross is cosmic and the death of Christ is the consummation and perfect embodiment of the vicarious principle of the universe. The Cross was necessary for the self-revelation and self-propitiation of God.

Vassili, Count Paul. Behind the veil at the Russian Court; with 23 il. in photogravure. N. Y., J: Lane. 9+408 p. pors. O. $4.50 n.

Wason, Rob. A: The dog and the child and the ancient sailor man; with a front. by Arth. Hutchins. Bost., Small, Maynard. c. '13. 4+209 p. D. $1 n.

The "Child" is a youngster who is being brought up by rule by a mother who has one idea and a father who is indulgently, though in his inmost heart skeptically, acquiescent. What happens when a Great Dane is introduced into the scheme of things is amazing to the mother, but the accidental interruption to her rule of life brought about by the appearance of the Ancient Sailor Man caps the climax.

Weaver, Laurence. House and gardens by E. L. Lutyens; described and criticized by Lawrence Weaver. [N. Y., Scribner.] il. diagrs. plans. F. (Country Life lib. of architecture monographs) bds., $8 n.

Devoted to the work of one architect with many illustrations showing examples of the houses and gardens designed by him.

Political history of Virginia from 1607 to 1688 rewritten in the light of many illuminating facts discovered during the past few decades in letters, monographs, old texts and legislative journals. Index.

Whitlock, Brand. Forty years of it. N. Y., Appleton. c. 12+374 p. D. $1.50 n.

Reminiscences which give the history of democracy in the Middle West. Author has been identified with "good government" for many years and in giving his memories he tells of Governor Altgeld, Tom Johnson, Golden Rule Jones, Frank Hunt Hurd, and others of their type.

Whitten, Wilfred, ["John o' London," pseud.]. A Londoner's London; with 24 il. by Fk. L. Emanuel. Bost., Small, Maynard. 14+329 p. D. $1.50 n.

Motto of volume is Dr. Johnson's remark, "Sir, the happiness of London is not to be conceived but by those who have seen it." Representative sub-titles are: The street that was Gypsy Hill; Carlyle and the Brickfields; The poet of Cornhill; The birth of Camden Town, The inertia of London; The chop-houses, etc.

Williams, Hawley. The winning hit. N. Y., Appleton. c. 2+282 p. il. in col. D. $1.25 n.

Sidney Royal thought he knew about baseball. When spring rolls around the boys at Lansing get excited over the sport Sidney becomes piqued because Dave Acker is chosen for first base instead of himself. Dave is working his way through school by acting as correspondent for a newspaper, and Sidney takes advantage of this fact to play a trick which comes near wrecking the ball team. But in the end Sidney, a much wiser boy, becomes one of the heroes of the hour at Lansing.

Worcester, Elwood, D.D. Religion and life. N. Y., Harper. c. 263 p. O. $1.25 n.

Subject, the personal and social aspects of religion to-day, is discussed by the rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston, whose work as the head of the Emmanuel Movement, has given him vast opportunities to study the relation of religion to life.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in FEBRUARY, 1914

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

J. F. TAPLEY COMPANY 531-3-5 West 37th Street

Established 1850 NEW YORK CITY

FRIDAY, MARCH THE THIRTEENTH

HAS BEEN SET AS THE PUBLICATION DAY OF

ANNE WARWICK'S NEW NOVEL

VICTORY LAW

THE AUTHOR

This is the seventh volume to be published from the pen of this clever young American author during the four years since she began to write. Although she is now only twenty-five, Anne Warwick has to her credit six novels: "Compensation," "The Unknown Woman," etc., and one book of travel, "The Meccas of the World." Indeed, she might justly be called America's most brilliant and promising young writer.

THE BOOK

Victory Law is a beautiful actress, whose passion for the stage is quite as human as her love for the aggressive young lawyer whom she finally decides to marry. The story is concerned not only with the inevitable after-marriage adjustment of the man and the woman, but with the equally vital reconciliation of the woman and the actress-in-one. A convincing novel.

—IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS—

What Men Live By

By Dr. RICHARD C. CABOT

A physician's contribution to the conduct of life. His application of work, play, love and worship to daily life and his experience of their healing powers are set forth in this volume in an inspiring and readable way. "Such writing, because it sets before the reader in a fresh and entertaining way beliefs and truths hitherto but vaguely held, must be richly inspirational in its effect."—Boston Transcript.

Letters of a Woman Homesteader

By ELINORE PRUITT STEWART

This book, parts of which have been appearing in the Atlantic Monthly, has been regarded as "the great literary discovery" of the past year. More delightful letters were never written. They tell a connected story of pioneer life, full of buoyancy and pluck and the spirit of adventure. The writer's world is full of attractive people—people of varied nationalities and of strong prejudices, who yet have learned long since that without good will a pioneer settlement cannot endure. The letters tell a love story, too, and, altogether, make one of the most humorous, touching, and lively documents in recent literature.

Illustrated by N. C. Wyeth. $1.25 net. Postage extra.

Confederate Portraits

By GAMALIEL BRADFORD

Mr. Bradford's new volume of "Confederate Portraits" does for a group of the more important Confederate leaders what his "Lee the American" did for their great commander. The men studied are Johnston, Stuart, Longstreet, Beauregard, Benjamin, Stephens, Tombs, Semmes. Each is dealt with from the fullest study of documents and other records, but with a biographic imagination and human insight that make the resulting portraits thoroughly convincing.

Illustrated. $2.50 net. Postage extra.

The Americans in the Philippines

By JAMES A. LeROY

With an Introduction by Hon. William H. Taft

The first complete, comprehensive, and authoritative history of the first years of the American occupation of the Islands. Mr. LeRoy was Secretary of the Philippine Commission. He had a personal knowledge of most of the events of which he wrote, and spared no pains in the diligent research of documents, records, and newspapers (both American and Spanish). The work is not less readable than sound.

2 vols. Boxed. $10.00 net. Postage extra.

Annals and Memoirs of the Court of Peking

By J. O. P. BLAND and EDMUND BACKHOUSE

Authors of "China Under the Empress Dowager."

"Of the importance to us today of understanding or endeavoring to understand the Chinese, no one will entertain a doubt, and therefore we heartily welcome a book like this in which the attempt is made, and made, we believe, successfully, to trace cause and effect back to the buried foundations of Chinese philosophy and civilization, and to look at things from the Chinese point of view."—London Globe.

Lavishly illustrated from photographs and facsimiles of Chinese prints. $4.50 net. Postage extra.

LATEST VOLUMES OF BIOGRAPHY AND REMINISCENCE

George Borrow and His Circle

By CLEMENT K. SHORTER

"Clement K. Shorter has rendered a real service to a generation that is more interested in money-making than in literature by writing 'George Borrow and his Circle.' He not only has given a convincing portrait of the famous English wanderer and writer, but has made plain also the conditions under which he grew up and the influences which shaped his career."—New York Herald.

With frontispiece. $3.00 net. Postage extra.

Our Friend John Burroughs

By DR. CLARA BARRUS

The increasing thousands of lovers of John Burroughs and his writings will welcome this intimate book about the man, his life, and his personality. A picturesque and vivid account of his youth, written by Mr. Burroughs himself, is a prominent and important feature. Illustrated. $2.00 net. Postage extra.

A Child of the Orient

By DEMETRA VAKA

A fascinating autobiographical story of the early life of a Greek girl in Constantinople. It has the exotic, Arabian Nights flavor of the same author's "Haremlik," with an even keener, more consecutive narrative interest. $1.25 net. Postage extra.

Thomas Wentworth Higginson

THE STORY OF HIS LIFE

By MARY THACHER HIGGINSON

This intimate biography tells for the first time the full story of the life of one of the most interesting of American soldiers and writers. Fully illustrated from portraits, views of Colonel Higginson's homes, friends, etc., and with facsimiles of interesting manuscripts.

Illustrated. $3.00 net. Postage extra.

Commodore George Hamilton Perkins, U. S. N.

By CARROLL STORRS ALDEN

An important addition to American historical biography and a most readable and engrossing biographic narrative. Commodore Perkins served with Farragut in some of the most notable naval engagements of the war; and he was in command of the monitor Chickasaw, which had the most conspicuous part in the Battle of Mobile Bay. Illustrated. $1.50 net. Postage extra.

Memoirs of Youth

By GIOVANNI VISCONTI VENOSTA

Translated by Rev. William Prall, D.D. With an Introduction by William Roscoe Thayer

Of the three great leaders of the Italian Risorgimento, Garibaldi, Mazzini, and Cavour, it was with the last named that Giovanni Visconti Venosta was most closely connected. His memoirs, now translated, represent the aristocratic attitude among the patriotic Italians, and give a personal and vivid account of the abuses of Austrian and clerical rule; of the outbreaks of 1848–50, their failure and cruel repression.

Illustrated. $4.00 net. Postage extra.

Paul Verlaine

By WILFRED THORLEY

This volume deals in a sane and authoritative fashion with that most brilliant of insane geniuses, Paul Verlaine. Verlaine's fevered life and his outstanding poetic work are both studied with full knowledge and with a fine critical sense.

PENROD

By

Booth Tarkington

Author of "The Gentleman from Indiana," "Monsieur Beaucaire," etc.

NOWHERE has Booth Tarkington done such finished, exquisite work as in this story of boyhood. The full flavor of his story is not only for the grown man or woman, but for all ages that love the comic muse. It is a picture of a boy's heart, full of those lovable, humorous, tragic things which are locked secrets to older folks unless one has the gift of understanding. Booth Tarkington has it eminently, and "Penrod" will stand as a classic interpretation of the omnipresent subtlety—BOY.

Harry Leon Wilson, Author of "Bunker Bean," etc., says:

"I think you have never done anything so good as the Penrod stuff. I am pretty sure I detect strokes here and there that you have never before equalled."

John Galsworthy

The English novelist, author of "The Dark Flower," etc., wrote of Conrad's books in 1908: "The writings of these ten books is probably the only writing of the last twelve years that will enrich the English language to any great extent."

H. G. Wells

Famous English novelist, author of "The Passionate Friends," "Tono-Bungay," etc., says: "One of my chief claims to distinction in the world is that I wrote the first long appreciative review of Joseph Conrad's work."

James Huneker

The famous critic, says that Conrad is

"The only man in England to-day who belongs to the immortal company of Meredith, Hardy and Henry James."

Admiral George Dewey

says:

"There are none of his readers, I am sure, but will join eagerly in the chorus of delighted approval of his past work, and in a clamorous petition for more of the same kind."

CHANCE

By JOSEPH CONRAD

A reader says of this new story by Conrad:

"A book that so possesses my mind, though I finished it a month ago, that the story of Flora de Barral seems to be in some way a part of my own life. I don't think I shall ever forget her amazing love story. It is all too human, too pathetic, too believably genuine and likable to forget."

Net, $1.35

Winston Churchill

Author of "The Inside of the Cup," etc., says:

"I have long been an admirer of his work, and it will make me very happy if, through your efforts, his books shall get that attention here which they so richly deserve."

Basil King

Author of "The Inner Shrine," etc. says: "'Chance' is a book which it is well-nigh a duty for every lover of good writing to read."

Louis Joseph Vance

Author of "Joan Thursday," says: "'Chance' seems to me to be an extraordinary achievement, a book of tremendous power.

Rex Beach

Famous novelist, author of "The Iron Trail," "The Net," etc., says:

"Joseph Conrad stands for the highest mark in present-day English fiction.

"I consider him the greatest living author in the English language."

William Lyon Phelps

Professor of English Literature, Yale University, says: "Conrad has the Slav passion for reality, a veritable genius for profound analysis. He seems to me to be a permanent figure in the history of the novel."

George Middleton

Dramatist and author, says:

"He deserves the reading of all who love what is best in literature. The word Conrad brings color to my mind, for Conrad is the Turner of prose."

THE BOY ELECTRICIAN

Practical Plans for Electrical Toys and Apparatus, with an Explanation of the Principles of Every-Day Electricity

By ALFRED P. MORGAN

Editor of "Boy Electrician" and of Mechanic Department of "Boys' Magazine"
Author of "Wireless Telegraphy Construction for Amateurs" and "Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony"

Illustrated by the Author. 8vo. Cloth. Price, net, $2.00; postpaid, $2.25

This is the age of electricity. The most fascinating of all books for a boy must therefore be one dealing with this ancient force and modern wonder. This book tells not only how to make all kinds of motors, telegraphs, telephones, batteries, etc., but explains their principles, and how the same thing is done in the every-day world.

WHEN MAX CAME

By EDNA A. BROWN

Author of "Four Gordons" and "Uncle David's Boys"
Illustrated by John Goss. 12mo. Cloth. Price, net, $1.20; postpaid, $1.32

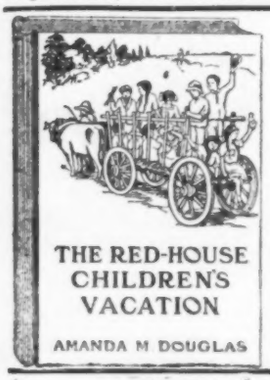
The story will appeal to both boys and girls of high school age, and like the other books by this author is distinguished by a marked literary quality, a pleasing tone, and the entire naturalness of its characters. The wooded hills of Maine form the background for a summer in which many things happened, both pleasant and unpleasant, after Max came.



THE RED HOUSE CHILDREN'S VACATION

Third Volume of "Little Red House Series." Previous Titles: "The Children in the Little Old Red House" and "The Red House Children at Grafton"

By AMANDA M. DOUGLAS

Illustrated by Louise Wyman. 12mo. Cloth. Price, net, $1.00; postpaid, $1.10

The eight interesting brothers and sisters who are rapidly becoming as well known as the "Five Little Peppers" have a summer vacation that it does one good to read about. Much can happen to an active family in ten summer weeks, and much does happen.

JOHN AND BETTY'S IRISH HISTORY VISIT

By MARGARET WILLIAMSON

Author of "John and Betty's English History Visit" and "John and Betty's Scotch History Visit"

Fully Illustrated from Photographs. 12mo. Cloth. Price, net, $1.25; postpaid, $1.37

The "history visits" in England and Scotland by the American brother and sister, John and Betty, have become so well known that great enjoyment will be expected from a similar trip in Ireland, and there will be no disappointment, as many will think it the most delightful of the three. True Irish wit and many a pleasing fairy tale enliven the pages.

WHEN I WAS A BOY IN PALESTINE

Fifth Title in "Children of Other Lands Books"

By MOUSA J. KALEEL

Illustrated from photographs furnished by Prof. Elihu Grant of Smith College
12mo. Cloth. Price, net, 60 cents; postpaid, 68 cents

Each of the "Children of Other Lands Books" is the truthful story of some one who has actually lived the native child life described, and later come to America for further education and opportunity. Perhaps the most interesting one of all is that of Mousa (or Moses) Kaleel who was born four miles from Jerusalem, grew up in the same way that children have grown up in the Holy Land since the days of Solomon, and came to this country after acquiring some outside knowledge at an American School conducted by Professor Grant.

FICTION

THE SORCERER'S STONE

By BEATRICE GRIMSHAW
Author of "Vaiti of the Island," etc.

This is a mystery story of adventure, rich in color and interest, by the master story-teller of the South Seas—a story that takes the reader into the tropic wildness of New Guinea in the feverish quest of the "Sorcerer's Stone," a wonderful diamond. There is a suggestion both of Kipling and of Stevenson in the vivid, breezy story as it is told by Flint, and the net result will be to greatly widen Miss Grimshaw's already large circle of readers.
Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth. $1.20 net.

THE UTTERMOST FARTHING

By R. AUSTIN FREEMAN
Author of "The Mystery of 31, New Inn," etc.

A rare treat for lovers of mystery and adventure stories. When Humphrey Challoner—a specialist in crinimal anthropology—dedicated his life to the apprehension and punishment of his wife's murderer, he "started something" that is absolutely new in mystery fiction. Mr. Freeman has created a curious and indescribable atmosphere not only so weird and real, but so irresistible to the reader, that one is strongly reminded of Edgar Allen Poe.
12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.20 net.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE ("Novels from Shakespeare" Series)

A Romance founded on Shakespeare's play and giving it complete in the form of fiction.

There is undeniably a large class of readers who have avoided Shakespeare because of the dramatic and poetic form of his work, and who are equally unsatisfied by Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" because of the inevitable fault to which Lamb confesses in his preface, namely, the restraint laid upon him by the necessity of brevity. To these readers the "Novels from Shakespeare" Series, of which this is the first volume, will immediately appeal.
12mo. Cloth. Illustrated with eight fine color plates. $1.20 net.

GIFT BOOKS AND FINE EDITIONS

THE LOVE LETTERS OF AN ERRATIC HUSBAND

By ARTHUR K. STERN

Deliciously funny, unconventionally clever, these letters tell the story of a young millionaire's escape from luxury and love in the "Windy City" to solitary, workaday existence in New York. His search for a job, his efforts as chauffeur, his adventures as match-maker, are related to his wife with all the freshness and spontaneous humor of the born story-teller. 256 pages, decorated in two colors, with cover inlay and frontispiece in four colors. Attractively bound. $1.00 net.

LORNA DOONE By R. D. BLACKMORE DE LUXE EDITION

EDUCATIONAL

CHARACTER DEVELOPMENT

By CHARLES KEEN TAYLOR, B.S., M.A.
Author of "Moral Education of Children," etc.

A manual for the use of parents, teachers, and all interested in education, containing detailed plans for the carrying on of a complete system of moral education. Mr. Taylor brings in the entire moral field, considering the morality that should govern men as citizens, as workers, and as private individuals.
12mo. Cloth. 242 pages. $1.00 net.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION AND TRAINING FOR CHILDREN By CHARLES KEEN TAYLOR, B.S., M.A.

A handbook for medical inspectors, physical directors, teachers and parents, giving in minute detail the physical training work outlined in Character Development. It is very much more than a book of exercises, and makes the whole subject of physical examination and training so simple that even the teacher without any previous experience can follow it. 12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.00 net.

TRAVEL AND ADVENTURE

HUNTING IN THE ARCTIC AND ALASKA By E. MARSHALL SCULL

Of particular interest, because Mr. Marshall Scull's party was the first one to successfully accomplish a hunting trip to the north-eastern shores of Siberia. Mr. Marshall Scull tells the story of an adventurous big game hunt, of which the trophies included specimens of practically all the game to be met with in Alaska, the Western Arctic Ocean, and the shores of Siberia.

GOOD FICTION

The Hoosier Volunteer

By KATE and VIRGIL D. BOYLES

Authors of "Langford of the Three-Bars" and "The Spirit Trail."

An unusually good war story with a vivid and charming picture of pioneer life in a backwoods community. The boys and girls at home and in school, at work and play, in joy and tragedy, are very real. It will bring back to the older readers the scenes of bygone days with their tears and laughter, and will tell the story to the young which American youth can never know too well. Illustrated by the Kinneys. Crown 8vo. Net $1.35.

The House of the Dawn

By MARAH ELLIS RYAN

Author of "For the Soul of Rafael," The Woman of the Twilight," etc.

A new story of Mexico and the Southwest during the early romantic days when the Spaniards first came. It is indeed an intense tale of young love and courage, with an historical background and an absorbing plot. Illustrated by Hanson Booth. Crown 8vo. Net $1.35.

Fine Feathers

By WEBSTER DENISON

Here is a book with a high and sincere purpose—in every sense of the word a strong story. It is founded upon the powerful play by Eugene Walter, which stirred packed theatres by its terrific arraignment of the mad lust for wealth which, when once it enters into the mental vision, spreads poison through the whole structure of character. Illustrated with many photographs of scenes from the play. 12 mo. Net 1.25.

Shea of the Irish Brigade

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "When Wilderness Was King," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

This is a swiftly moving tale of soldier life, a vivid, well-colored picture of the time when the allies were seeking to defeat Louis XV, and the Irish exiles were the flower of the French army. Yet, while set against the background of great historical events—the siege of Tournay, and the battle of Fontenoy—the story itself has to do with adventures between the lines, and the tender and unusual love romance of Arthur Shea and a dainty lady of the French court. It is romantic fiction at its best. Illustrated by Alonzo Kimball. 12mo. Net, $1.30.

The Green Seal

By CHARLES EDMONDS WALK

Author of "The Time Lock," "The Crimson Cross," etc.

At the time the story opens, a Los Angeles lawyer became heir to the Green Seal ring, and soon after received a large and almost priceless diamond from an unknown source. How he became involved in most astonishing and dangerous experiences; how the heroine was an innocent victim of conditions which began years before in Tibet; and how finally the mysteries and troubles clear away, the seal and diamond reach their destined owners; and how Lois changes her mind, make a thrilling story of love and mystery. Illustrated by Will Grefé. Crown 8vo. Net $1.35.

BOOKS OF STANDARD VALUE

The Coming Hawaii

By JOSEPH KING GOODRICH

Beginning with Captain Cook and even earlier navigators, the history of this fascinating land is briefly told. Descriptions of the character and life of the natives and newcomers follow, and full space is given to the attractions of the islands for tourists and settlers. The products, business, and possibilities receive abundant mention, and little worthy of interest is left untouched. The volume is a timely addition to "The World Today Series." The statistics are up to date. Illustrated. 12mo. Net $1.50.

Kit Carson Days

By EDWIN L. SABIN

Kit Carson, the famous scout, guide, Indian fighter, and Indian pacificator, played a much more important part in the transformation of the West than is generally recognized. Mr. Sabin has written the first biography of this extraordinary character that is really authoritative; and he has made it not only a personal record of Carson's achievements, but a history of the opening of the West. Illustrated. Crown 8vo. Net $3.00.

The Art of Story-Telling

By JULIA DARROW COWLES

Out of her broad experience and love for the work, Miss Cowles tells how the art of story-telling can be made to minister the highest service. She describes story-telling in the home and in the school, and treats at length of different kinds of stories—fables, myths, hero tales, Bible, and many other kinds which may delight and help the children. Parents, teachers, and others who would use this art most profitably and happily, will find here just what they want. 12mo. Net, $1.00.

Earmarks of Literature

By ARTHUR E. BOSTWICK
Author of "The Different West."

The things which make good books good, are here made clear and interesting for popular reading by the librarian of the St. Louis Public Library, who has gathered and grouped together many things that are herein discussed in readable and compact form. 12mo. Net 90 cents.

Worry and Nervousness;
or the Science of Self-Mastery

By WILLIAM S. SADLER, M. D.
Author of "The Physiology of Faith and Fear," "The Science of Living," etc.

A comprehensive and exhaustive discussion by a noted physician and author upon "worry" and "nerve exhaustion"—diseases common and peculiar to the American people. The book is written in popular style for the benefit of the vast number of sufferers from "the tyranny of nerves" or the "slavery of worry," and these unfortunates cannot fail to derive help and relief from its pages. Illustrated. 12mo. Net $1.50.

Junipero Serra, His Life and His Work

By A. H. FITCH

The present biography is an attempt to supply the need for a popular account of the life and labors of the simple Franciscan monk, whose memory is reverenced and honored by California. Illustrated. Crown 8vo. Net $1.50.

Cubists and Post-Impressionism

By ARTHUR JEROME EDDY
Author of "Delight: the Soul of Art" and "The New Competition."

This remarkable work is far more than an exposition of certain styles of painting, but while broadly historical and descriptive of many men and schools, presents a plea for the public to react to new impressions, and a defence of freedom for the artist to express himself untrammeled by the past. Illustrated by twenty-four color plates and over forty half-tones of the pictures under discussion. 8vo. Boxed. Net $3.00.
